Visiting London.

A quick and easy way to get to different places in the city is to use an Underground train. The trains run all day and most of the night. Buy your ticket before you get on the train. It's better not to make your journey between eight o'clock and ten o'clock in the morning, or four o'clock and six o'clock in the evening. These are called the "rush" hours. Thousands of people are going to work or coming home again then, and it is difficult to move or find a place to sit on the train.

Guy Fawkes' Day

In 1604, the king of England was James I and a Protestant. Many people did not like him because they were Catholics and wanted a Catholic king. A Catholic called Guy Fawkes, and his friends, had a plot to kill King James, and his government, when he opened Parliament in London 5 November 1605.

They put thirty-six boxes of gunpowder in a room underneath the Houses of Parliament. They wanted to kill everyone at the same time. But the plan did not work. One of Guy Fawkes' friends wrote a note to someone about it. At about midnight on 4 November, the King's soldiers found Guy Fawkes and the gunpowder. They sent him to prison but he did not want to give the names of his friends. They did terrible things to him for eight days until he said all their names.

Parliament decided that Guy Fawkes and the other plotters had to die. In January 1606, when people heard the news that the plotters were dead, they made many fires in the streets to celebrate. King James was alive and well!

The Most Famous Album In The World.

In the opinion of some newspapers in early 1967, the Beatles didn't have any more ideas. And then came "Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band".

The title song was Paul's. He had the idea after a trip to the United States. Bands with very long names were becoming popular there. Paul wanted the Beatles to be a different band for the album. In his mind, the album was a concert by this other band.

The album was a big step in the band's music. They used the studio wonderfully, but this took a long time. The Beatles' first album was made in around twelve hours, but "Sergeant Pepper" took over 700 hours! Both Ringo and George said later that it was sometimes boring. "My heart was still in India," said George. (Shipton, P., The Beatles, Penguin Readers)

The Exxon Valdez

The sea off the coast of Alaska is always dangerous because it is full of small islands and rocks, some of which lie hidden under the water. In winter and spring, there is another danger: ice.

The Exxon Valdez started its journey in the late evening of 24th March 1989. At first, Captain Hazelwood was controlling the ship. Later he went to his cabin to do some paperwork. He left the ship in command of Third-Officer Cousins.

Just after midnight, the Exxon Valdez hit a group of rocks called Bligh Reef. The Exxon Valdez had five holes in its side - one of the holes was two metres wide by six meters long. Fifty million litres of oil started to flow out of the ship and into the sea. The captain sent a message: "We're losing some oil and we're going to be here for a while."

EMPTY! - No Oil As The First Hospitals and Schools Are Hit

Britain has nearly stopped today, only the second day of the oil crisis. Despite the warning given by the Prime Minister, many of Britain's oil refineries are still blocked by lorries, tractors and taxis.

Lorry drivers, angry at the price of petrol, have again stopped petrol tankers from leaving oil refineries in Wales, the north-west Essex. The drivers are angry at petrol prices. At 80p per litre Britain has the highest prices in Europe and 60.82p of the price goes to the government in tax.

"I employ twenty people and I'm going out of business", says haulage contractor Jim Sowerbutts of Lincoln, one of the people blocking the Immingham refinery on the east coast. "We cannot make a living with petrol at these prices. It's impossible. It makes goods dearer for the consumer. And Britain is an oil producer. It's mad."

Britain has run out of petrol very quickly. Today well over 1,000 of Britain's 8,000 filling stations ran dry and even more are out of unleaded petrol - the most popular choice. Among those affected today:

- Hospitals are running out of beds because patients cannot get home either by ambulance or by taxi.
- Operations are being postponed because only nurses who live within walking distance of hospital or who use public transport can get in.
- There are fears that hospitals will run out of blood.
- Supermarkets report that people are buying more tinned goods - stockpiling in case food cannot be delivered.
- Some areas of the country, such as Crumbia in the north-west, have almost no public transport services. They are virtually cut off from the rest of the country and there are fears for food supplies in this and similar areas.
